Blackboard Tips for Faculty
November 1, 2011

Access UND Software Anywhere, Anytime using Citrix

When you need to use software applications that are not loaded on your computer, use UND’s Citrix remote access servers to link to the application. Connect to these applications remotely from home, smart phones, and other devices outside of the campus network, and then work as if it was on your computer. This is especially helpful when using applications on both PC and Mac systems. Citrix offers convenience for faculty and students, as you can use it anytime from anywhere. A few specialty software examples include SPSS, Mathematica, and Adobe applications. Common products such as the Microsoft Office suite are also available. If software used by your department isn’t listed, contact UND Tech Support to submit a request.

All users log in to Citrix with their IdM username and password (same ID as Campus Connection, Blackboard etc.). For information on how to access Citrix please visit http://und.edu/tech-support/faculty-staff/citrix-instructors.cfm.

Listen to one instructor’s experience with Citrix for software used in her field. Meganne Masko, Music Therapy (resize the video window to full-screen)