UND is committed to ending power-based personal violence (sexual violence, relationship violence and stalking) on our campus. This workshop confronts the issue of violence, and offers real solutions to end violence, one green dot at a time.

The Green Dot strategy is built on the premise that in order to measurably reduce these acts of violence, a cultural shift is necessary. To achieve this culture shift, a critical mass of people will need to engage in new behaviors that will make violence less prevalent in our community.

Green Dot is an individual choice, a moment in time. No one has to do everything, but everyone can do something. Help make our UND community safer by attending this workshop and learning what you can do to add your green dot to our campus map!
