Greetings Students and Friends,

It’s that time of year when I feel the need to remind students that if you have not done so yet, now would be an excellent time to put together a basic highway survival kit to keep in your vehicle at all times. This is especially important given the large number of students that travel back and forth to their home communities. And while the widespread use of cell phones has improved safety for stranded travelers, you need to keep in mind that it may take a long period of time before help can arrive, especially in stormy weather. Your survival kit should include warm boots, hat, gloves and a blanket. Also include a flashlight, a coffee can, candles, matches or lighter, and some quick energy snacks like candy bars.

And it must be the parent in me, but I find it alarming how underdressed students are as they make their way across campus in dangerously cold temperatures! Please dress appropriately when the thermometer drops below zero; it only takes a few minutes for frostbite to occur on exposed skin. When dealing with North Dakota winters, keep in mind that hats, gloves, scarves, and boots are always in style! You should be aware that UND rarely cancels classes due to the weather, so dress warm and don’t let the elements keep you from attending classes.

It’s also the time of year when students need to be mindful of approaching deadlines for financial aid. Be sure to check the application deadline dates on various scholarship opportunities, and if you’re interested in exploring new scholarships, check out the selection linked to the AISS homepage. Our office also has scholarship packets available that students can pick up; however, these scholarships are primarily geared toward North Dakota residents. The Free Application for Student Aid (FAFSA) needs to be completed or updated every year as well, and the deadline for priority consideration in North Dakota is April 15th.

I’d like to remind students that if you find yourself struggling with any of your new classes, please do not hesitate to come in and talk about it with our staff or refer to the AISS tutoring schedule featured in this newsletter issue and posted online. If you do not see the course you are struggling with listed on the tutoring schedule, check with Keith; there are other tutoring programs on campus that he can refer you to if needed. AISS staff members can also advise you as to whether or not dropping a difficult course might be your best option. Students, you need to keep in mind that dropping too many courses can adversely affect you, your financial aid, or your Satisfactory Progress status. If you have questions or concerns, do not hesitate to come in and talk with the staff of American Indian Student Services!

Before closing, I must take a moment to express how important our American Indian student organizations have become. The UND Indian Association (UNDIA), American Indian Business Leaders (AIBL), American Indian Science & Engineering Society (AISES), and the Indian Studies Association (ISA), have worked particularly hard to plan and host events as well as fundraisers, and the leadership skills gained through campus community participation is enhancing the university experience of those involved. For those who have not yet become active members in one or more of these organizations, be assured that all campus student organizations continue to welcome new members, and many volunteers will be sought for upcoming events. Involvement in student organizations is also a great way to make friends!

Meanwhile, think spring, take good care, stay warm, and come join us for hot, homemade soup for lunch on Fridays throughout the winter at the American Indian Center!

Summer Research Diversity Fellowships in Law and Social Science for Undergraduate Students 2013

Purpose
The American Bar Foundation sponsors a program of summer research fellowships to interest undergraduate students from diverse backgrounds in pursuing graduate study in the social sciences. The summer program is designed to introduce students to the rewards and demands of a research-oriented career in the field of law and social science. The program is supported in part by the Kenneth E. and Harle G. Montgomery Foundation, AT&T, and the National Science Foundation Research Experiences for Undergraduates.

Located in Chicago, Illinois, the American Bar Foundation is an independent nonprofit research institute dedicated to the study of law, legal institutions, and legal processes. The Foundation conducts empirically based research on a broad range of civil and criminal justice issues. Current research areas include: professionalism and the transformation of the legal profession in the United States and abroad, the dynamics of employment discrimination disputes, the impact of civil rights law on the economic progress of minorities, jury decision making, public interest lawyering and social reform, historical analyses of labor, group libel, and regulatory law, and the role of law in racial relations, postcolonial settings, and globalization. The Foundation’s research is conducted by a multidisciplinary resident research faculty with academic training in law, sociology, psychology, political science, economics, history, and anthropology. Many ABF Research Professors hold joint appointments at Chicago-area universities. Recognized as a major institution in the field of law and social science, the Foundation offers a rich environment to students considering an academic or research career.

Eligibility
Eligible are American citizens and lawful permanent residents including, but not limited to, persons who are African American, Hispanic/Latino, Native American, or Puerto Rican, as well as other individuals who will add diversity to the field of law and social science.

Applications will be considered only from sophomores and juniors, that is, students who have completed at least the sophomore year and who have not received a bachelor’s degree by the time the fellowship begins. Applicants must have a Grade Point Average of at least 3.0 (on a 4.0 scale) and be moving toward an academic major in the social sciences or humanities.

Program, Tenure, and Stipend
Four summer research fellowships will be awarded each year. Each student will be assigned to an American Bar Foundation Research Professor who will involve the student in the professor’s research project and who will act as a mentor during the student’s tenure. The students also will participate in a series of seminars and field visits to acquaint them with the many facets of sociological research and the legal system. The students will work at the American Bar Foundation’s offices in Chicago, Illinois for 35 hours a week for a period of 8 weeks. Each student will receive a stipend of $3,600.

Application Procedure
Applicants for the Summer Research Fellowships must provide the following:

- A brief essay on the topics indicated in the application form
- Official transcripts of all academic courses completed at the time of application
- One letter of recommendation from a faculty member familiar with the student’s work

Completed applications, including transcript and letter of recommendation, are due no later than February 15, 2013. Awards will be announced by April 1, 2013.

Application materials are available at the American Bar Foundation’s Web site: http://www.americanbarfoundation.org/Fellowships/Call_for_Summer_Research_Diversity_Fellows.html

The Morris K. Udall and Stewart L. Udall Foundation is pleased to announce our 2013 Internship and Scholarship program opportunities. We request your assistance in identifying students who would be excellent candidates for our programs and encouraging them to apply.

The Native American Congressional Internship program is a fully-funded, ten-week summer internship in Washington, D.C. for Native American and Alaska Native undergraduate, graduate and law students. Interns work in congressional and agency offices where they have opportunities to research legislative issues important to tribal communities, network with public officials and experience an insider’s view of the federal government. The Foundation provides airfare, housing, per diem, and a $1,200 educational stipend. The application deadline is January 31, 2013.

The Udall Scholarship program awards $5,000 merit-based scholarships for college sophomores and juniors seeking a career in tribal health, tribal public policy or the environment. Scholars participate in a five-day Orientation in Tucson, AZ, to learn more about tribal and environmental issues through discussions with experts, their peers, and members of the Udall family. Applications must be submitted through a Udall Faculty Representative at the student’s college or university. More information about Faculty Representatives can be found on the Udall website. The application deadline is March 1, 2013.

The Udall Foundation was founded to honor Morris K. Udall’s thirty years of service in the U.S. House of Representatives. In 2009, Congress enacted legislation to add Stewart L. Udall, Morris Udall’s older brother, to the Foundation. The two worked together on many environmental and Native American initiatives while Stewart Udall was Secretary of the Interior and Morris Udall a member of Congress. Since 1995, 99 tribes have been represented in the Scholarship and Internship programs.

We encourage you to visit our website at www.udall.gov to learn more about our programs and share our materials with college students from your community. Interested students may contact us directly by email or phone. Thank you for your time and assistance. We look forward to working with you!

Sincerely,

Teresa Bravo

Internship Opportunity in Climate and Weather

Dear Friend of SOARS,

We are inviting students from many disciplines interested in the atmospheric sciences to consider an internship at the National Center for Atmospheric Research and partnering labs in Boulder, Colorado.

SOARS offers up to four years of summer research experience, strong mentoring, community support, funding for conferences, tuition support and graduate school preparation. Our mission is to increase the diversity of the atmospheric and related sciences, by involving more students from historically under-represented groups, including Black or African-American, American Indian or Alaska Native, Hispanic or Latino, female, first-generation college students and students with disabilities. SOARS welcomes lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender students.

Please help us extend this opportunity to your students with the enclosed materials.

Sincerely,

Rebecca Haacker-Santos
Director, SOARS Program

Application deadline: February 1, 2013.

Greetings.

We are writing to tell you about an exciting summer research opportunity at Harvard Medical School and Brigham and Women’s Hospital (BWH) for undergraduate students with commitment to the health of Native American communities. The Four Directions Summer Research Program (FDSRP) will be celebrating its 20th Anniversary in 2013, and has brought nearly 160 students to Boston during this time.

Briefly, students are invited to join us for 8 weeks to engage in basic, clinical or translational research projects under the supervision of BWH faculty advisors. At the end of the 8 weeks students will share their findings during a program ending research presentation day.

As well as conducting research, students will also receive professional development training, meet faculty from across the hospital and medical school, and participate in social networking events.

FDSRP will cover students’ travel costs to and from Boston, provide housing free of charge, and give them a stipend for the summer.

This is a great opportunity for your students to train in the Harvard Medical School environment. Please review the included brochure and visit the program website at www.fdsrp.org for more information and to view the application. The application deadline is February 13, 2013 and students will be notified of their selection by March 8, 2013.

Please feel free to contact us if you have any questions at FourDirections@partners.org or call (617) 525-7846.

We look forward to hearing from you and your students.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO BE A LEADER?

The UND Student Involvement and Leadership Office will be hosting a free leadership conference themed around, "What does it mean to be a leader?" The conference will be on February 9th, 2013 and will be from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. The conference will feature a keynote speaker and four separate program breakout sessions which will focus on five categories of leadership: organization leadership, personal leadership, professional leadership, community leadership, and global leadership. Presentations will be executed by members of the UND community. Everyone is welcome to come whether you are connected to a student organization or position of leadership or just want to enhance your own development.

After attending the conference participants will be able to:
* identify ways to be a leader in different settings within and beyond UND.
* motivated to influence their peers to accomplish positive change.
* have an understanding of the broad realms of leadership.
* begin to self-identify personal leadership styles/characteristics.
* identify at least one action step they could do in the spring 2013 semester to positively impact the UND community through their leadership.

We are currently soliciting proposals for 40 minute sessions on one of the five areas of leadership outlined above. I have included a list of potential topics below, but you can expand and go beyond this as well. Program proposals are open from now through Friday, January 25th, and presenters will be notified, via e-mail, no later than January 28th regarding their program acceptance. The proposal form can be found online at: https://involvement.und.edu/form/start/16716. We hope you will consider presenting at this conference!

Spring Career Fair set for Feb. 12

Faculty and staff, the 2013 Spring Career Fair dates are set! Please mark your calendars for Feb. 12, noon to 4 p.m., at the Wellness Center. Career Services will host an employer meet and greet for students on Feb. 11 from 4:30 to 6 p.m. This is a fantastic opportunity to meet and engage with employers before the Career Fair.

Want to encourage your students to attend? Put the Career Fair in your lesson plans and make it a class event! Don’t have the flexibility of missing a class, but want students to still participate? Lead by example and show how much you support them in their academic and career pursuits.
