Greetings Students and Friends,

November is national Native American Heritage month and there are numerous events to take in and celebrate the beauty, strength, and value of our indigenous cultures. The Indian Studies Association (ISA) has organized its annual American Indian Film Festival for the month of November a great opportunity to view excellent movies featuring meaningful and rather emotional content through the stories portrayed in the films. This is a great educational opportunity for the entire campus and we appreciate this effort by Dining Services to recognize American Indian traditional and contemporary cultures with this event.

The staff of American Indian Student Services would also like to commend our American Indian student organizations for the great turnout and activities at the Halloween Party held last month! Our First Nations Day was once again a widely attended and successful event as well. Thanks go out to the event’s featured speaker, Dr. Wendelin Hume, and the talented group of students who shared their stories! Contributions such as those made at our ND First Nation’s Day celebration enrich the university experience of all who attend. I’m truly so proud of our students and the American Indian student organizations on campus!

One of our organizations, the American Indian Science & Engineering Society (AISES) group is traveling to the National AISES Conference being held in Orlando, Florida November 13 – 15th and we wish them all a meaningful time, safe travels, and of course – some fun in the sun! Aside from the valuable conference, travel, and educational opportunities, getting involved with student organizations can also pay off in the form of developing leadership skills as well as potentially strengthening applications for scholarships. Community involvement and volunteerism are almost always areas of interest to scholarship providers as well as to future employers! So students, if you haven’t yet gotten involved, do not hesitate to check out the wealth of student organizations available! New members are always welcome and the friends you will make by getting involved will likely enrich your college experience as well.

Students who may have received deficiencies should be sure to come in and visit with an AISS staff member to learn about short-term options and long-term impacts concerning struggling or failing grades. Students need to be careful about dropping too many attempted courses when it comes to financial aid and academic progress. Also, please keep in mind that the AISS tutors are available to assist in a wide variety of areas on a walk-in basis and free of charge Sunday through Thursday evenings beginning at 5:00 p.m. at the American Indian Center. The tutors are friendly and helpful, and they’re here to help students realize academic success! Most importantly, don’t despair – there is help for those willing to seek it out, and a large part of making it through college is PERSISTENCE! You can do it!

Finally, I would like to mention that Tuesday, November 11th is Veteran’s Day and therefore, there are no classes and the American Indian Center will be closed that day. And while we all enjoy a day off, it is important to recognize the tremendous courage, sacrifices, and contributions made by our Veterans, most who have served through international times of war or conflict, and often deployed for months or even years at a time and far, far from home. American Indians have far higher rates of enlisting in the various branches of the military than any other ethnic population in the U. S. Perhaps that is because they realize the critical importance of protecting our homes, our citizens, and our lands. Another factor for such high numbers of enlistment may be that within our American Indian cultures and communities, our Veterans/Warriors are among the most highly respected. That is why they carry the flags and lead the Grand Entry at our powwows and other community events. They have earned great honor because they have shown such amazing courage in the face of life-threatening danger. So please, take a moment to think about why we recognize Veterans Day as a federal holiday, and thank any service members and veterans you know or encounter this Veteran’s Day – or any time throughout the year!

With that, please take good care and keep in touch! For those journeying home for Thanksgiving later in the month, I wish you all safe travels and know you will enjoy some great home cooking and warm family gatherings!

~ Leigh D. Jeanotte, Director

National Competition
Summer 2015

If you like using numbers to learn about people, the economy and world events, and you have completed your sophomore or junior year as of June 2015 with a strong academic record, there is an opportunity in Washington DC waiting for you.

The Joint Program in Survey Methodology (JPSM), a consortium sponsored by the Federal Statistical Agencies, is conducting a nationwide search for a limited number of Junior Fellows. This unique experience combines a paid research assistantship with ongoing educational seminars.

Successful applicants will work in one of the Federal Statistical Agencies in the Washington, DC area during the summer of 2015. This internship will let you learn how data gathered from households and economic units are used to track and identify trends.

You will work on key indicators of unemployment, crime, consumer prices, population migration and growth, agricultural production, educational performance of young people, transportation trends, or a host of other topics. A salary of $4,500-$5,000 for 10 weeks and apartment style dormitory housing will be provided.

As a JPSM Junior Fellow you will participate in seminars on survey methodology and explore career options in survey research, which may include JPSM-sponsored graduate degree programs in survey methodology.

Applicants for the Junior Fellow positions should submit a personal statement of no more than one page (500 words), academic transcript, and one faculty recommendation.

The application process opens October 1, 2014 and ends December 31, 2014, 5pm ET.

For application forms and more information, visit the JPSM web page at:

The Native American Scholarships Fund is an endowment established to foster a sense of shared purpose and positive interaction between archaeologists and Native Americans. Scholarships are open to all Native peoples from anywhere in the Americas, Alaska Natives, Native Hawaiians, and Indigenous Pacific Islanders.

Since 1998, the SAA has used the endowment income to award the annual Arthur C. Parker Scholarship in support of archaeological training for Native Americans who are students or employees of tribal, Alaska Native, or Native Hawaiian cultural preservation programs. National Science Foundation (NSF) Scholarships for Archaeological Training for Native Americans and Native Hawaiians are also awarded through the Native American Scholarships Committee. In 2009, the SAA added two new awards in support of undergraduate and graduate archaeology education.

Support for these scholarships comes in several ways: through individual donations, an annual silent auction at the SAA meetings, book royalties, and grants. For questions about the applications process or to make a donation, please contact the Committee Chair.

- SAA Arthur C. Parker Scholarship or NSF Scholarship for Archaeological Training: to support archaeological training or a research program for Native American students or employees of tribal cultural preservation programs (up to $4,000).
- SAA Native Undergraduate Archaeology Scholarship: to support undergraduate studies for Native American students including but not limited to tuition, travel, food, housing, books, supplies, equipment, and child care (up to $5,000).
- SAA Native American Graduate Archaeology Scholarship: to support graduate studies for Native American students, including but not limited to tuition, travel, food, housing, books, supplies, equipment, and child care (up to $10,000).

Scholarship Searches

Internet scholarship search engines provide extensive FREE scholarship information. Some of the larger search engines include: CollegeBoard, FastWEB, Mach25, NextStudent, and ScholarshipExperts scholarship searches. Another free resource is Weekly Scholarship Alert. This service e-mails you 5-10 scholarship notices each week; no personal information is gathered beyond name and e-mail address.

AISS also has scholarship booklets and single packets on hand for distribution.

Indian Studies Association, Film Festival

In celebration of Native American Heritage Month (November), UND Indian Studies Association will be having an American Indian Film Festival

Join us for our feature films Holy Man and Up Heartbreak Hill

Wednesday
November 12th, 2014
Up Heartbreak Hill
Memorial Union, Lecture Bowl
7:00 PM

Up Heartbreak Hill features characters Thomas and Tamara, track stars at their rural New Mexico high school. Like many teenagers, they are torn between the lure of brighter futures elsewhere and the ties that bind them to home. For these teens, however, home is an impoverished town on the Navajo reservation, and leaving means separating from family, tradition and the land that has been theirs for generations. Erica Scharf’s Up Heartbreak Hill is a moving look at a new generation of Americans struggling to be both Native and modern.

Tuesday
November 18th, 2014
Holy Man
Memorial Union, Loading Dock
7:00 PM

Holy Man is the story of Douglas White, an 88 year old Lakota Sioux medicine man from Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in South Dakota, who spent 17 years in federal prison for a crime he did not commit. During the making of this film, filmmakers uncovered new evidence of White’s innocence and brought the case back to Federal Court. Holy Man offers a rare glimpse into the mysterious world of Lakota religion, their intimate connection to the land, and a provocative expose of the systemic injustice that Native Americans face in the criminal justice system.

American Indian Student Services

The AISS office provides all-encompassing student support services including advocacy, tutorial support, and academic, financial aid, and cultural advisement. It is responsible for coordinating recruitment, establishing communication channels, assisting with institutional planning, and advising UND’s faculty, staff, and administration as to the needs of American Indian students.

The staff is committed to helping students realize success at UND, and each member brings a unique area of specialty to their position such as financial aid guidance, housing assistance, academic advising, and technological or tutorial support. AISS also administers the American Indian Center on campus, and provides guidance and assistance to the American Indian student organizations and their events.
